A method of generating a M-theory cosmology which has no super-Planckian energy density for "branes" whose Planck masses are the same as their Newtonian masses would be a strong counterexample to most of the recent works on the bulk reconstruction of super-Planckian brane cosmology, which all posit branes with Planck masses less than their Newtonian masses. Instead, here we show that the model has a massless domain wall solution of M-theory in five dimensions on which the three space dimensions can be viewed as standing waves, as in recent attempts to obtain 4-dimensional quantum cosmology from M-theory. The three space dimensions thus appear as a dynamical degree of freedom with Newtonian mass. Thus, a super-Planckian brane produces no high 1cb139a0ed
