DEKART Private Disk 2.10.Updated at 2:51 p.m. ET Former Minnesota Gov. Jesse Ventura is scheduled to challenge Democratic Rep. Keith Ellison for Minnesota's open Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party (DFL) endorsement for Attorney General. "I'm going to run for U.S. Senate," Ventura, the former professional wrestler, said Tuesday. "We'll see how it goes from there. I'm not going to do anything until I get into that." Ventura, 57, a Republican and former Navy SEAL who now runs a security company, announced his plans to run for Minnesota's open Senate seat in a high-profile tweet Tuesday afternoon. All political campaigns can start with self-funded candidates who can count on private donations to fund their campaigns. But state law requires politicians to qualify as candidates in the DFL-endorsed primary if they are running for any public office. Ventura will need to pay close to $5,000 to be listed as a candidate in the upcoming primary contest. Click here to download a PDF of the Minnesota State Board of Elections form for filing with the FEC. He would have to qualify with his own money in a primary election if he were to lose the DFL endorsement because he is not a member of the state party. Ellison would automatically be a candidate if he were not elected as attorney general — an office he has held for nearly two decades. In April, he became the first Muslim to be elected to Congress. Gov. Mark Dayton told Fox News in June that he has endorsed Ellison and asked him to run for the Senate seat, though
