This study

sought to understand the role of organizational setting in the success of provider-driven quality improvement (PD-QI) interventions at the provider and organizational levels. This was a cross-sectional study of 162 primary care practices participating in the ongoing Patient Centered Primary Care Research Network's (PCP-RCRN) Practice Transformation Network. The results of stepwise logistic regression identified the relative contribution of organizational and practice factors to the likelihood of successful PD-QI intervention implementation. Successful implementation of PD-QI in high-performing practices was more likely to be the result of team dynamics rather than organizational culture. Factors associated with the successful implementation of PD-QI at the practice level were the existence of a PD-QI champion, the existence of a QI process in place, and the existence of a policy and goal for PD-QI. Factors associated with the successful implementation of PD-QI in high-performing practices were the existence of an organizational champion and an existing QI process in place. The organizational role of this champion was critical to the success of PD-QI at the practice level.

I use NIS for a small office and it works on my laptop which has an IP address of 192.168.1.20, but it does not work on the server which has an IP address of 192.168.1.21. How do I access the NIS domain server using the IP address? A: Assuming the NIS server is on the same network as the server where you're trying to connect: On the server, run: `nis -R` and then connect to the IP of the NIS server.
