For The Record is an advanced software application that gives you the possibility to set up an automatic scheduler to record your favorite TV shows using a multitude a rules. It can run as a service for multiple clients and lets you play recordings as soon as they're saved on the disk. Customizable installer During the installation procedure you can select the role of the machine for For The Record: both a server and a client, a standalone server, or a client. Alternatively, you can opt for custom mode to handpick the exact components you want to install while excluding the rest: server core services, web access and IM service (enables communication via Windows Live Messenger), recorder, tuner, and GUI clients. In the following step, you can pick a user name and password to remotely access the For The Record service, configure the core services with default or custom settings, install the web server using the internal web server, existing Microsoft IIS or website files only, or enable web access user authentication. Comfortable interface with advanced options After setting up all the necessary details, you can bring up the management console to review the TV guide and find out the exact shows you want to record. As previously mentioned, this is done with the help of an intricate rule-based system which permits you to capture the exact content you want while eliminating unnecessary data. For example, you can indicate a pre- and post-record time, choose the preferred TV guide, change the default server for For The Record, configure an email server (SMTP), limit the free and minimum free disk space, set up a delay time for waking up the server before an event, automatically create thumbnails for all television recordings, or modify the default text encoding mode. Credits: Filene's Basement, review the ReviewDl.com :)Labour's Dave Anderson has been elected to Swansea City Council - replacing his uncle Francis, who has resigned over Labour party misconduct allegations. The Tony Blair-supporting MP for Swansea East was elected in the Brynmor Jones electoral ward with 39.4% of the votes. Former Conservative candidate Scott Gilliland finished second with 31.7% and was elected in the Tannery ward. The decision comes days after a Mumbles MP, former Labour councillor Tonia Antoniazzi, resigned from the party following claims that she told supporters she was planning to vote for UKIP as a protest against the party's treatment of its gay members. She was subsequently suspended by the party. Francis Mallinder was elected in the Caerau ward in 2012 and received a total of 32.4%. The winner of the special election is expected to be announced in the coming weeks. Liberal Democrat candidate Rosie Brooke O'Farrell came third, with 19.6%. Mr Anderson said: "I'd like to thank the electorate of Brynmor Jones for their support in this election. "I am excited about the chance to serve the community and I am looking forward to
