Divergence is a space survival game on the outer space near the Earth. You are in a special situation when everything was destroyed by the oncoming meteorites and nuclear war. Now you have just one chance to survive this disaster. The year of 973. The Earth has been devastated by the meteorites and nuclear war. The only survivors are few souls trapped in space. Earth is a closed and protected place where the life is concentrated. You have to survive this critical situation and find out what happened to your planet. Your only chance to survive is in the aftermath of the disasters. Your resources include oxygen and food. All buildings, vehicles and equipment you built will be the only way for you to survive. The resources of the ship will be your salvation in the near future... if you can get them to survive. You will have to master the craftsmanship, research the mysteries of the Earth, to build the world around you. Instructions: What you will see: - New environment - Unrealistic graphic effects - Tuned for mobile devices What you can do: - Dig resources from the surface of the earth - Mine resources in the space - Transport goods - Build shops - Build spaceships and weapons - Make machines - Produce oxygen and food - Research technology - Explore the Earth - Repair your ship - Fight against dangerous creatures Sequel: Apogee of Hope After a terrible incident, you were left in complete silence and absolute loneliness in orbit of your planet. There is no one to help you, and you have to survive and find out what caused such an incident. You only have you and you, and you can only rely on yourself. Resources from the remains of the same ships will be your salvation. Take apart the wreckage of the ships, maybe you will find something useful. But remember that you need oxygen and food, try to find a way to produce them. Be careful, space is unpredictable. Features: Crafting - you can create useful things for you from the mined and found resources. Survival - you need to watch your needs in order not to die! Building - build your safe space station. Manufacturing - create mechanisms for the production of your needs. Research - search the area to find new resources, but don't fly too far. Lumbermill With Registration Code Free

Lumbermill is a puzzle platformer with a heavy focus on immersive gameplay. The storyline begins during a small industrial revolution in a small town of the North. It takes place in a wooden mill, in which the player uses mainly controlled movements to solve puzzles and progress in the game. Each level has its challenges and difficulties that the player will need to overcome as soon as possible. Lumbermill features a unique and robust mechanics structure that reacts to everything the player does, creating different effects and changes in the gameplay. The player has to work on a saw to cut logs, to open chests, remove blocks and boxes to reach keys, doors and levers, etc. During this process, a variety of fantastic characters come in play, that give clues, help the player and share secrets to discover! Like a faithful friend, the game is also a friendly parent that rewards the player each step they make in the game with gifts and special powers. The game is played with the Xbox 360 gamepad, the Nintendo GameCube controller, or a keyboard and mouse. We would like to invite everyone to play with us in the game and also invite all the users of the portal to give us feedback so we can work on Lumbermill! UPDATE 10.11 In this update we focus on the bug fixing process. The current roadmap for the first half of 2018 is clearly written for both free time and software release. By now, the priority is on the gameplay and visual improvements in order to offer the best experience. Changes in the Update 10.11 are numerous. Changes: 1 - A popup is shown if the player disconnects from the network after a long time; 2 - Some bug fixes in the saving system; 3 - A new icon is shown for the player connected to different networks; 4 - The player has the option to turn off the memory for the lobby; 5 - A new sound is used for the unlocking of the chests; 6 - Another new music track is added; 7 - The player still has the control panel from the last update in the game; 8 - Fixed the bug that would prevent to proceed in the game; 9 - Fixed the bug that stops the game after an error. Are you ready to get to play with us? Leave your feedback by leaving comments in the forum discussions. Best Regards UPDATE 9.7 In this update we focus on the bugs in the game, user interface and controls improvements, multiplayer d41b202975

It's a fast-paced game with a very different and enjoyable approach to the action puzzle genre. You are your character which is, well, lumber. You run around on different ladders, ledges, and other gizmos to collect pieces of wood, stone, and metal. The trick is that every time you place an item, it doesn't create a permanent structure. As you grab things, they start to disintegrate, as well as all the other items. This means that if you grab something from one side of the level and drop it on the other, that item isn't stuck in place. And it means that you need to keep moving, to keep grabbing new pieces of everything as they disintegrate. That's a pretty interesting mechanic. The designers of this game really know their stuff. What's new:

Owners to Ratify New Contract, Work to Resume Monday Copyright 2015 Associated Press. All rights reserved. SEATTLE (AP) - Workers at the Meridian-Kukui Grove lumber mill will be back to work starting Monday because of a new union contract, the second largest private employer in Hawaii decided not to close the mill and more than 2,000 workers will keep their jobs. Thursday morning's announcement came less than 36 hours after thousands of people across the Hawaii-U.S. mainland greeted the news that the wood mill's management announced it was terminating the existing union contract it had with the union. The announcement by the Big Island-based Pacific Resource Partnership (PRP) at the Meridian-Kapalama lumber mill shocked mill workers and mill creditors, and prompted a long rally of supporters at the plant gates Thursday afternoon. "We didn't know what to say," said Laura Fey, a step ladder operator who had been told less than a week ago that she would be out of work. "If you told us this six months ago, I would have said, 'It's a miracle. We'll meet somewhere in the middle.' " Fey, 34, does not work six days a week, depending on the season. Instead, she works six days and then has two days off. She was told this week she would lose that time off. Fey said her husband works in Honolulu, so they plan to relocate after one final day at the mill. About 2,000 workers at Meridian-Kapalama would keep their jobs under the new contract. The contract, which was ratified by its members and the mill's management on Thursday morning, would include a $2.6 million payment in back pay and relocation reimbursement, ranging from $60,000 to $85,000 for those who qualify, according to the union. The deal also includes a $2.5 million payment in improvements to benefits for workers, according to the union. No workers will see their pay cut or have their hours cut. The contract would allow workers to reach a maximum of 84 hours a week so they can have two days off a week. A worker at the mill, who declined to be identified, said he was against the contract. "He wants everyone to lose their jobs," said the worker, who was at his wife's glass and framing shop, where he was paid hourly wages. A memo
