While it's not possible to say how many wells a single company might have affected, it is clear the list of well-failures is growing. We apologize, but this video has failed to load. tap here to see other videos from our team. Try refreshing your browser, or Darryl Gordon: Alberta's oil and gas industry has a safety problem Back to video Owners of these wells in the province have a wide range of safety and maintenance options available to them for ensuring the well's safety. The best solution for a well will depend on what the operator is trying to accomplish with that well, and the size and production rate of the well. Preliminary findings from a review of well incidents published in 2016 by the Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers (CAPP) and the Oil and Gas Commission show that well blowouts and casing failures are the leading causes of incidents at oil and gas operations. The Alberta oil and gas well incident review noted that 926 well blowouts were recorded in the province between 2004 and 2013. In approximately 90 per cent of the incidents involving well blowouts, there were no injuries reported.Q: How to create a user on a machine that has a static IP address?
