Monoclonal antibodies to human CD80: analysis of binding and functional activity. Fifty-seven hybridomas secreting monoclonal antibodies (mAb) specific for CD80 have been isolated from fusion of mouse myeloma NS-1-Ag4-1 with splenocytes from mice immunized with human OKT-4. These hybridomas were screened using a panel of CD80+ target cells expressing a variety of murine APC, including LA.2, EBV-transformed B cells, and AKR T cells. In addition, CD80+ target cells expressing human APC, including HLA-DR3+, -DR4+, and -DR7+, were analyzed. We found that 30% of the mAbs recognized a surface epitope that is not shared by other members of the B7 family. This group of antibodies, designated as M78, showed high binding affinity for CD80+ target cells and neutralized the CD28 costimulatory signal but had no effect on the CD8 T cell costimulatory signal. Analysis of HLA-DR3+ B lymphoblastoid cell lines expressing CD80 showed that this epitope is carried by HLA class II molecules. We conclude that this class of CD80-specific mAbs is directed to a unique HLA class II-dependent epitope. However, all mAbs, regardless of specificities, neutralize CD28/B7.1 costimulation and might have different biological activities in vivo. } else if (sys == 0) { if (ethereonUtils.isEthernetEnabled()) mProperties.setProperty(PROP_CUSTOM_NETWORK_INFO, new NetworkInfo(ethereonUtils.getCurrentNetworkInfo())); if (ethereonUtils.isGooglePlayServicesAvailable()) mProperties.setProperty(PROP_CUSTOM_PLAY_SERVICES_INFO, new PlayServicesInfo(getApplicationContext(), ethere

My Secret Santa sent me a nice box of paper goods like toilet paper, paper towels, and brown kraft paper/clipboard sheets. Included was a note reading, "Thank you for the thoughtful gift. I must be doing something right! Cheers, T." Now I'm at a loss as to the purpose of this note since you never addressed it to me directly. But who am I to judge? I was so honored to receive these lovely goodies. My wife and I would like to thank you for the thoughtful gifts, Amazon and USPS, and will cherish these items always.Q: JqGrid when row dragged outside viewport When a user drags a row outside the viewport I want the row to be "undraggable". I've looked at this example and this and the second example seems closer but I'm still a bit lost on how to implement it. The event that gets hooked is rowmousedown: `jQuery("#list").jqGrid('rowMouseDown', rowid)` I found a bit of code on the Gridster issue tracker here that I'm starting with `$("#list").bind("jqGridUnselectRow", function (e,id) { if (event.which!== 1) return; //do stuff });` Is there a way to make it more DRY? I've also tried using the sortableStop handler: `$("#list").sortableStop(function(event, ui){ if (event.which!== 1) return; $(this).find(".ui-state-error").removeClass("ui-state-error").addClass("ui-state-success"); });` I don't think this will work since I'm not setting ui-state-error specifically but you never know. I've tried playing around with `preventDefault` and `stopPropogation()` as well, but I'm not quite getting it yet. Any help is appreciated. I'm sure there's a way to do this without any extra jQuery but I'd rather avoid that if possible. A: You can use the formatter:'unformat' option which is compatible with drag and drop outside of the grid. The corresponding demo has an option `{postData:{savedRowId:true}}`
